USAC History

The United States Auto Club (USAC) was founded in 1955 as a not-for-profit auto race sanctioning organization with the purposes of developing rules and specifications for the sport, providing qualified officials for the conduct of its events and in general, instituting an organized framework for the race participants and race organizers.

After the 1955 season USAC was formed by Indianapolis Motor Speedway owner Tony Hulman. USAC became the governing body for what was then known as Championship Auto Racing. There was also a separate set of rules that was set for the championship cars, known today as the Silvercrown series.

USAC went on to sanction Stock Cars, IndyCar, Road Racing, open wheel racing, as well as now adding off road racing, quarter midgets, and beginning in 2017: karting.

USAC Sanctioned the Indianapolis 500 from 1956-1997 and currently operates five divisions of automobile racing and annually sanctions and conducts some 150 events. In addition, USAC, conducts land speed record trials and automotive testing for many leading manufacturers in the United States. USAC is a member organization for the Automobile Competition Committee of the United States (ACCUS-FIA), which provides a direct link with the International motor sports governing body, and FIA as well as licensing drivers for competition.
